

How to Reinstate Your Driving Privilege

January, 2008

www.wisconsinDMV.gov

If your Wisconsin driving privilege is suspended, revoked, disqualified or cancelled, you can reinstate it by fulfilling certain requirements.

Start by finding out what you must do to reinstate your driving privilege.

Use any computer with Internet access, such as at home or a public library.

- Go online at www.wisconsinDMV.gov
- Click on "DMV online services available to you"
- Click on "Reinstatement eligibility"
- Click on "Check your eligibility for reinstatement of your driving privilege online"

Enter the following information:

- Whether or not you are currently a Wisconsin resident AND
- Your Wisconsin driver license number or Wisconsin driver identification number; OR
- Your Social Security number and date of birth; OR
- Your name, sex, and date of birth

You may be asked additional questions that will help provide a complete list of your reinstatement requirements.

What information will I receive?

You will receive a list of requirements to reinstate your Wisconsin driving privilege. You can print the list. Some examples of information you will receive include:

- Court case number or citation number and the name, address and telephone number of the court that ordered a suspension for failure to pay a fine.
- The name, address and telephone number of the assessment agency or technical school you must contact to complete an alcohol assessment or driver safety plan.
- The name, address, and telephone number of the court(s) where judgments arising from motor vehicle accidents are entered and their court case numbers.
- Information about vehicle registration suspensions.
- Information indicating if an SR22 insurance filing is required and how long continuous insurance coverage must be carried to have a valid driver license.

Find out your eligibility for an occupational license at www.wisconsinDMV.gov.

Find out how long you must file SR22 insurance at www.wisconsinDMV.gov, too!

If you still have questions after using the online systems, call the DMV Driver Information Section at (608) 266-2261 during normal business hours.